

Peninsula Custom Homes Welcomes 45th US President

Foster City, May 2012 — This spring, President Barack Obama and Republican Party presidential candidate Mitt Romney, each held events for their supporters in Northern California. Despite well-publicized differences on matters political and philosophical, they did agree on one important issue: the ideal place to gather supporters in Northern California is in a distinctive Peninsula Custom Home.

Republican Party candidate, Governor Mitt Romney, held his campaign fundraising event on May 30th at the historic Carolands Mansion in Hillsborough. The Carolands Mansion was fully renovated by PCH, with work completed in 2002.

Democratic Party candidate, President Barack Obama held his campaign fundraising event on May 23rd at an Atherton home. This original construction was completed by PCH in 2001.

Peninsula Custom Homes is honored that the country's most prominent dignitaries have recognized our work. After more than thirty years of dedication to every detail and every client, we are humbled and gratified to receive these sweeping endorsements.

— At PCH, our commitment to customer satisfaction begins at the first client meeting and continues for the duration of the project and beyond. This has been a key to our longevity in an unpredictable industry. PCH has cultivated relationships with architects, contractors, designers, and craftspeople renowned across the Bay Area and throughout the world. We also have a dedicated team of over fifty people on staff. Together we've built a rock-solid reputation and a collection of the Bay Area's most prominent and stunning homes.
